

RYNO[®] KINO

Made for movement,
designed for independence

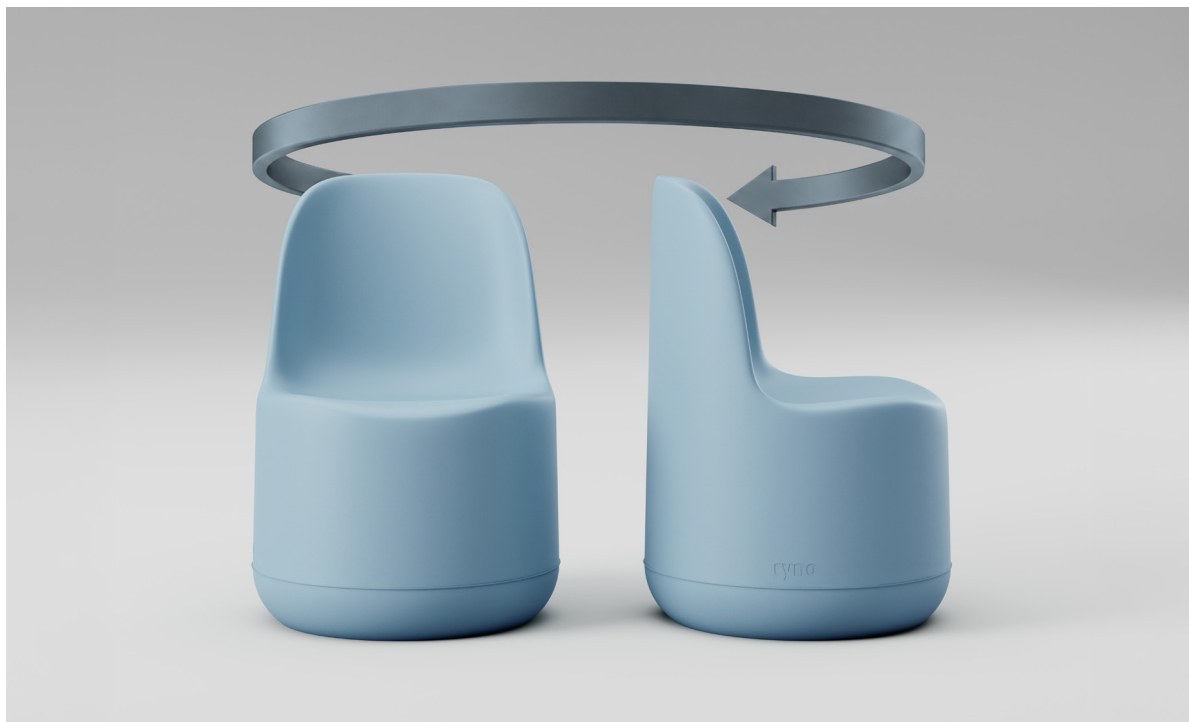

Pineapple

When we first developed the Ryno® range, we wanted to create furniture that felt warm and welcoming while delivering dependable safety and durability. The newest addition, the Kino chair, carries that thinking forward. To enhance safety, its contemporary, sculpted form is subtly designed to be difficult to pick up. The chair also features no vulnerable fixings or unnecessary gaps, helping to reduce opportunities for ligature attachment, concealment, and tampering.	Its antibacterial surface is free from raised edges, tight corners, and grooves, making routine cleaning easier and leaving fewer places for dirt or contaminants to collect. Kino's optional swivel function allows the chair to rotate 180 degrees. In addition to providing sensory input, this movement can benefit people with reduced mobility by helping them get into and out of the chair with less assistance and greater independence.

Seating that moves with you

Kino's optional 180-degree swivel function is designed to help people with reduced mobility move into and out of the chair more easily, especially when positioned at a table. Where staff assistance may previously have been required, Kino can help provide greater independence.
